1 Instantly Killed Another Dead When Train And Car Meet

W. F. Senn of Ruby and Edward Smith of Newark, N. J., dead—Ford on Railroad Tracks Struck By Train—Three Escaped Injuries.

Walker Frederick Senn, 30, of Ruby was instantly killed and Edward Smith, 50, of 54 Pennington street, Newark, N. J., was fatally injured about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning when a Ford touring car in which they were riding was struck at the North crossing between Glenelg and Lake Katrine by a north bound passenger train. The car was demolished. Two women and another man who were in the party escaped when they jumped in time to avoid being struck.

The party of five had been attending a dance at the Mountain View House on the Saugerties road and were on their way home at the time. The Mt. Marion road is closed due to bridge construction and the party had taken the little used dirt road which leaves 9-W below Glenelg and runs out past the Y. M. C. A. camp and a number of summer homes.

Edward Smith was driving the car and apparently unfamiliar with the surroundings approached the crossing which is slightly elevated above the roadway. Just beyond the tracks the road turns and parallels the tracks. Apparently he had driven up the incline on the tracks and became confused and thinking the railroad right of way was the highway he turned his car north on the crossing only to learn he had turned too soon. The car was stopped with the front end just past the crossing planks and three of the occupants had alighted to assist in pushing the car back on the crossing when the train approached from the south. The car was directly on the tracks and was struck by the train. The three people who had alighted were able to jump to safety after shouting a warning to the two men in the car. They apparently had no time to jump.

At the point where the accident happened the tracks curve slightly to the east as a train approached from the south and the crossing is shielded by woods. Notice of the train's approach was unobeyed until a moment before the crash. Senn's body was thrown 150 feet beyond the crossing and Smith was killed on the spot. The car was crushed and the bodies of the two men were crushed. Senn suffered numerous fractures, many of them compound, and death was immediate. Smith suffered severe lacerations about the head and body, a fractured skull and several broken ribs. His lungs were also punctured. He was treated at the Kingston Hospital by Dr. Fred Snyder and Dr. John Krom but died Sunday evening about 10 o'clock. An autopsy was later performed by Drs. Krom and Snyder.

The other three in the party who were attempting to push the car from the tracks were: John Sweeney, 26, of Ruby, and the Misses E. Meyers, 30, of 635 South 13th street, Newark, N. J., and Florence Barstene, 25, of 388 Highland avenue, Arlington, N. J.

Coroner W. M. Bonner, Sergeant Cunningham, Deputy Sheriff Abram Molloy, Trooper Reilly and railroad police and other railroad officers made an investigation. Apparently the party was en route home and became lost. Smith, who was driving, was unfamiliar with the territory. Apparently the curve to the south had prevented the two men in the car from observing the approach of the train until it was too late to escape.

The train was traveling at a fast clip and the Ford was demolished. The metal was rolled up to such an extent that it was impossible to even tell what type of car it had been. The body of the car was carried 215 feet up the track above the crossing and the rear wheels and other parts of the car were found 1,400 feet from the point of contact. Wreckage was strewn along the tracks for a long distance.

The train was stopped after the impact and Conductor Cunningham directed one of the train crew to notify the yardmaster at Kingston. F. W. Gleisner, trainmaster, was notified and he in turn notified Coroner Conner of the accident. Arthur Kentor and Harry Barnhart were sent to the scene with the Conner ambulance and brought Smith to the hospital and then returned with Coroner Conner to continue the investigation and care for Senn's body. Sunday morning the scene was viewed by daylight by the officials and photographs were taken. The car was owned by Miss Meyers.

Assistant District Attorney N. LeVan Haver also went to the scene to conduct an investigation and J. E. Sampson, claim agent for the railroad, made an investigation for the railroad.

The train which struck the party was No. 19, northbound from Kingston. Mr. Senn had resided at Ruby about four years, coming there from New Jersey. He was the proprietor of a store. Beside his father, John Senn, of Ruby, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Fred Bartels of Jersey City and Mrs. George Leedecke, Newark, N. J. Only a week ago he transferred his membership from Highland Lodge, No. 56, F. & A. M. to Kingston Lodge, No. 16, of this city. He was a member of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church and secretary to the congregation. The funeral will be held from the residence of Jacob Reitz, Ruby, Tuesday at 2 p. m. and from Mt. Calvary Lutheran

Lindbergh Kidnapping Again in the News

Boston, Oct. 23 (AP)—Echoes of the Lindbergh kidnapping were in the air today as Boston police delivered into the past of John Gorch.

Sergeant Arthur M. Therman and Inspector William J. Bonner, who arrested him yesterday in a Back Bay apartment, noted a strong resemblance to the much sought "John" of the Lindbergh kidnapping—the person to whom Dr. John F. Condon declared he paid $50,000 ransom.

Meanwhile telegrams sent to the police of several cities brought replies indicating he was wanted for questioning in far spread places. Deputy Superintendent of Police James McDevitt said he communicated with Captain Norman Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey state police, and that the New Jersey officer had been seeking Gorch for questioning since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped March 1, 1932.

Therman and Bonner pointed out what they considered a "remarkable resemblance" to the "John" to whom Dr. Condon, "Jafie" of the Lindbergh case, paid ransom money one midnight.

Police said Gorch had the facial characteristics attributed to "John" by Dr. Condon, including the high forehead, sharp chin and widely spaced eyes.

He gave his age as 37. He weighs 180 pounds, and his height is five feet, eight inches. The "John" sought for questioning by New Jersey authorities was described as having the same facial characteristics.

The circular said "John" spoke with a "Scandinavian or German accent."

Gorch, police said, spoke with a similar accent.

A woman found in the apartment with Gorch was held for questioning.

President Goes Ahead
With Plans for Gold

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt concentrated today on preparations for immediate initiation of his new monetary plan.

Discussion took place at the White House preliminary to the setting of a price the government will pay for newly mined gold, in proceeding toward its goal of higher price levels and a managed currency.

James Jones, RFC chairman, under whom the policy will be executed, was with the President in the early hours.

Also summoned to the executive's side were Dean Acheson, acting secretary of the treasury, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., chairman of the Farm Credit Administration.

At the White House it was stated that the President had received considerable reaction to his speech last night, principally favorable.

Chairman Fletcher, of the Senate banking committee, in a talk with reporters, gave a wholehearted approval to the gold purchase policy, but said if this does not do the things hoped for, "less emphasis" should be placed on the yellow metal as a currency base.

"Undoubtedly what the President has in mind will be most helpful and may be all that is needed," he said.

Russian Recognition
Studied at Washington

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Russian recognition has eclipsed disarmament, Cuba, British war debt discussions and preparations for the Pan-American conference as subjects of discussion in official Washington.

It ranks with the Domestic recovery plan as a major subject of conversation. Prospective Russian trade is viewed promising stimulation to the cotton, pork products, copper and machinery businesses in this country.

Electrical and agricultural implement stocks immediately were influenced by the announcement that Litvinoff will come to Washington to discuss the restoration of Russo-American relations with President Roosevelt.

Roosevelt to First Boost Price Levels Then Revalue Dollar

Will Establish a Government Market For Gold in the United States—Reviews Administration's Monetary Program.

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Firm control of the dollar's gold value to day was added by President Roosevelt to the government's multiple efforts to lift commodity prices.

The means of control was establishment of a government market for newly mined gold in the United States and the President's decision to buy or sell gold—"whenever necessary"—in the world markets.

Mr. Roosevelt announced the step as a definite policy, "to establish and maintain continuous control" looking toward a managed currency, in a talk to the country last night. He pledged specifically to boost price levels and eventually revalue the dollar.

"Government credit will be maintained," the President said, "and sound currency will accompany a rise in the American commodity price level."

Reviewing his administration's recovery campaign, Mr. Roosevelt assured the people "we are on our way and we are headed in the right direction."

"When we have restored the price level," said the President, "we shall seek to establish and maintain a dollar which will not change its purchasing and debt paying power during the succeeding generation."

For the present, he said, it was important to tighten control over the dollar. Mr. Roosevelt added:

"As a further effective means to this end, I am going to establish a government market for gold in the United States. Therefore, under the clearly defined authority of existing law, I am authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy gold newly mined in the United States at price to be determined from time to time after consultation with the secretary of the treasury and the President. Whenever necessary to the end in view, we shall also buy or sell gold in the world market."

Along with this new monetary action, Mr. Roosevelt discussed generally the aims and achievements of the recovery drive, stressing the farm and NRA administrations as mounting columns in the new "edifice of recovery"—the temple which, when completed, will no longer be a temple of money changers or beggars but rather a temple dedicated to and maintained for a greater social justice, a greater welfare for America—the habitation of a sound economic life."

He urged the faster spending of public works money and emphasized "two simple facts" about banking—the billion dollar program for freeing deposits frozen in banks closed since January and the deposit guarantee becoming effective next January.

Mr. Roosevelt estimated that 4,000,000 people have been given employment since March—"or, saying it another way, 40 per cent of those seeking work have found it."

"That does not mean," he said, "that I am satisfied. We have a long way to go but we are on the way."

Turning to the NRA, the President said:

"In the vast majority of cases, in the vast majority of localities—the NRA has been given support in untold measure. We know that there are chancellors. At the bottom of every case of criticism and obstruction we have found some selfish interest, some private axe to grind."

The chief executive spoke over the National and Columbia Broadcasting Systems.

FRENCH CABINET MAY BE FORCED TO RESIGN.

Paris, Oct. 23 (AP)—With the life of his cabinet at stake, Premier Edouard Daladier forced the issue on his program to balance the budget when he demanded an immediate vote in the chamber of deputies today on the vital issues in his plan.

Discouraged by Parliamentary wrangling, he declared the vote was urged "for the country's sake."

Litvinoff Keeps Route to U. S. Secret

Moscow, Oct. 23 (AP)—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff hopes to travel incognito to Washington for his conversations with President Roosevelt and will leave Moscow without revealing his route to America, the time of his arrival there or the identity of those who will accompany him.

Thus much was indicated by the foreign office today where officials flatly refused to reveal any information of Litvinoff's plans in representing Russia in negotiations looking to possible American recognition.

"And," it was added, "no information will be made public on the subject."

Officials denied he already had left. If, however, he expects to catch the liner Manhattan as originally supposed, he would have to leave here no later than the night of October 24, in order to embark at Hamburg at the time for sailing, October 26.

Fears in some American quarters that recognition of Russia would lead down the bars to Communist propaganda are lightly regarded here.

Leaders mention treaties with England, Japan, France and Italy—each of which mutual non-interference with one another's internal problems is pledged.

So, it is argued, this should be one of the most minor of matters when Maxim Litvinoff, Russia's representative, sits down soon with President Roosevelt in Washington.

Only those in the highest councils of the Soviet are fully aware, however, of the precise nature of the Russian position generally which Litvinoff will set forth.

Details of the Soviet's stand toward recognition will be withheld until after the conversations at Washington.

Mrs. Minna Garvey Struck by Auto

Mrs. Minna Garvey, 50, of R. F. D. 3, New Paltz, is confined to the Kingston Hospital with injuries received when struck by an automobile driven by William Emerson of St. Remy, about 8 o'clock Sunday evening on Broadway, near Brewster street. According to the police report Mrs. Garvey sustained a fractured leg, a fractured nose and other injuries.

Mr. Emerson in reporting the accident stated he was driving down Broadway when one woman ran in front of his car and another woman ran against the side of the car. He said he did not see the women until one of them was in front of his car when he applied the brakes and stopped. He said that the woman injured was the one who ran into the side of the car.

At the time of the accident Mrs. Garvey was crossing the street with her sister, Mrs. Mary Northrop, of East Jewett. Mr. Garvey, husband of the injured woman, was standing on the sidewalk and saw the accident.

Cuban Loan Through Chase National Bank Before Investigators

Managed Three Loans to Cuba Aggregating $80,000,000 Between 1927 and 1930—Machado's Son-in-law Was Manager of Havana Branch Bank.

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Cuban loans through the Chase National Bank aggregating $80,000,000, chiefly while a son-in-law of the recently deposed President Machado was manager of the bank's Havana branch, drew the attention today of senate investigators.

Albert H. Wiggin, $100,000-a-year retired chairman of the bank, was recalled to the stand for questioning on the Cuban loans, as the inquiry committee temporarily dropped its investigation of pool transactions in Chase bank stock.

The Cuban situation was brought to the fore at the request of W. W. Aldrich, president of the bank, who demanded a speedy inquiry following published reports that Wall Street was attempting to suppress it.

The Chase Bank managed three loans to Cuba aggregating $80,000,000 between 1927 and 1930, from which it derived profits of $627,927, after allowing for expenses of $438,500.

Two of the three, totaling $70,000,000 were made while Jose Emilio Machado y Fiesco, son-in-law of the then President Machado, was joint manager of the Chase Bank in Havana.

Overseas was employed by the bank as a "new business man," or agent to obtain a new business, at a salary first of $12,000 a year and later $15,000. Chase officials told a previous senate inquiry, however, he had little connection with the transactions.

The committee planned to inquire fully into the purposes for which the money was used. Because of charges it was spent extravagantly on roads and a capital building. In the former inquiry, it was charged some of the roads were constructed at a cost of more than $100,000 a mile.

In a statement to the committee last week asking for the inquiry, Aldrich said every dollar of the loans was paid directly to construction contractors on work certificates approved by the Cuban government.

"Not a dollar was paid to President Machado or any other officer or employee of the Cuban government or anyone else, directly or indirectly, by way of commission or gratuity," Aldrich testified.

N. Y. MAYORAL CAMPAIGN
ENTERS LAST FORTNIGHT

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—The three-man struggle for the mayor's chair grew hotter today as it entered its last fortnight.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, the Fusion nominee, gained an important supporter in the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, Protestant Episcopal bishop of New York.

Both La Guardia and Joseph V. McKee, Democrat running on the Recovery ticket, whaled away at each other and at Tammany. McKee called the city's educational system "a scandal and a disgrace."

Tammany, whose candidate is Mayor John P. O'Brien, watched with satisfaction the bitter fight between McKee and La Guardia and hoped they would wear each other down to defeat. O'Brien, speaking yesterday to negroes in Harlem, condemned race hatred.

The question of religion, which flared in the fight between McKee and La Guardia, was deplored by a statement signed by four prominent citizens of Jewish blood, headed by Governor Lehman.

They said "we deeply deplore and condemn the introduction into the mayoralty campaign of any religious issue."

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT IN HUNTING ACCIDENTS

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23 (AP)—One man was killed and two others were seriously injured in week-end hunting accidents in New York state.

Postmaster John T. Gallagher, 52, of Witherbee, was killed while hunting deer near Port Henry yesterday when his gun went off sending a 30-30 bullet through his heart. Hunters who found his body believed he had put his gun against a tree, and in reaching for it leaned over the barrel as it went off.

Home Relief Methods Are Attacked By Board Member

Alfred Schmid Reports Average Number of Families Receiving Relief Per Week From January 1, 1933, to May 20, 1933, at 654, But Average Weekly Investigations For Same Period Was Only 46—Total Cost of Relief Orders for Period Set at $60,684.59.

Alfred Schmid, the Republican member of the board of public welfare, gave an interesting talk on the work of handling home relief in Kingston at the weekly meeting of the Republican Club Friday evening. Mr. Schmid said:

"I have been asked to talk to you this evening concerning the work of the Kingston Welfare Board. As you all know it is the duty of the Welfare Department to provide food, clothing, fuel, medical attention and shelter for all needy persons who are eligible for relief and who are unable to provide the necessities of life for themselves and their dependents. It is not our duty to provide work for the unemployed as that is the task of the Work Relief Commission."

"In the year 1932 our department spent a little over $115,000 for home relief and that amount does not include the amount spent for maintaining and operating the city home for the thousands spent for old age grants or pensions as they are often called. Indications are that in the neighborhood of $115,000 will again be spent this year just for home relief."

"We are very fortunate that we have been able to obtain the funds to provide for those who have not been self supporting. As long as there are people in our city unable to obtain employment and are entitled to relief it is our duty to provide for them."

"Before the depression when the city appropriated very little money, compared with today, for relief purposes, many families found themselves without funds during the winter but rather than go to the Alms House for assistance they sought aid of individuals. Perhaps some of you have at one time or another, in the past, been called upon to give aid in one form or another to some family and if they happened to have asked for $5 or $10 I'll venture to say that if you were not thoroughly acquainted with the family as to their income and needs you did not part with your money until you had made an investigation. If you had found, for example, that the father and his 13 year old son were out of employment and there was no source of income of any kind for that family of six and there was every evidence that they were in need you no doubt helped them if you were able to and were glad to do it. If you had the resources and were rather charitably inclined you would have given that father $5 or $10 worth of food the following week and perhaps the third week but you would continue to give this aid week after week to a family who were practically strangers to you without determining for yourself if another investigation to see if they were really still in need. You probably would also want to inquire at the factory where the father and son were formerly employed to ascertain if one of them was that positive you would not have continued giving a more or less strange family $5 or $10 worth of provisions week after week without checking on them in various ways every two or three weeks."

"We, in turn, as taxpayers expect of the Welfare Department to aid all who are entitled to relief to receive it in a sufficient amount to support them but expect the department to use the same precautions we would if we were giving out relief orders. Has the city been doing this? Has an investigator called at the home of every family every two or three weeks for a check up? Have applicants for relief been promptly taken care of at all times?"

"At the end of each week the Home Relief office makes out a detailed report of its activities, a copy of which is delivered to the mayor and each of the three commissioners. (Continued on Page 11)

Payroll Additions
Noted in Report

New York, Oct. 23 (AP)—Reports of payroll additions since August 1 in 405 communities in the 57 counties outside New York city have been made public by W. A. Harriman, chairman of the President's emergency re-employment campaign committee for the state.

An average of one person in every fifteen over 14 years of age in the urban population upstate has been put to work, the reports show. This average is one for every four families.

The whole number of persons re-employed in 179 communities of 2,500 or more was 67,912. Their weekly wages aggregate $1,366,235, an average of $20.12.

In 226 other communities of less than 2,500, the number of persons put to work was 2,495, at wages aggregating $39,439, the grand totals being 70,407 persons and $1,405,674 in wages. The urban population affected is 97 per cent of the whole.

The urban communities in this vicinity covered by the reports include:

City or Village	Persons Added	Weekly Wages
Poughkeepsie	750	14,572
Esopus	5	75
Kingston	260	26,660

Lindberghs Off on Flight.
Southampton, England, Oct. 23 (AP)—Braving a treacherous coastal fog, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off on a flight to an unknown destination early today with only a few sandwiches besides the rations they always carry in their plane. There was a growing belief that their destination was Ireland, but neither the Colonel nor his wife would confirm and officials at the Woolston Airfield did not know.

Treasury Receipts.
Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—The position of the treasury of October 23 was: Receipts $54,957,664.54; expenditures $72,969,415.82; balance $387,618,485.92; customs receipts for the month $21,243,668.57; receipts for fiscal year to date (since July 1) $875,581,749.57; expenditures $1,232,237,455.30 including $358,851,512.77 emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures $406,635,705.73.

Flashes of Life
Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 23.—This being the 33rd birthday of the Rev. Charles W. Savidge, he stood ready to celebrate by marrying free all couples who appeared before him. "I'll charge it to the Lord's account," said the parson, who has tied the marital knot for 6,530 couples. "God will pay me."

All Improvements.

Tallahassee, Fla.—The Ed Parmenters, proud parents, announce "the 1933 Parmenter 'Baby Boy' model," equipped with "two lung power, free squalling, scream-like body and changeable seat covers."

Faithful Unto Death.

New York—Five pooleys guarded the body of Mrs. Myrtle Hoag, once well-to-do, who died in poverty in a tiny flat. The dogs had to be dragged away before an ambulance crew could remove the body yesterday. Mrs. Hoag was said to be the widow of a former city official.

Make It Snappy.

Bronxville, N. Y.—Today inaugurated Bronxville's era of snappy kissing. Wives who drove their commuting husbands to the station consumed so much time kissing them that traffic jams resulted. Beginning today, police decreed, a prolonged kiss will mean a ticket. Charles Francis Coe, writer, who takes the 9:41 every morning, is against the decree. "A damn foolish thing," he said.

Kissing's OK.

Chicago—Kissing scenes at Chicago railroad stations are in order. In fact the police enjoy them. The question came up after police of Bronxville, N. Y., said they would arrest kissers for blocking traffic.

Scully Carved Again.

New York—Speaking about operations, Frank Scully has lost his tonsils and Mrs. Scully has a new daughter. Scully, an author to whom operations have come thick and fast during a career in 25 hospitals, had his latest over the week-end. His daughter was born at the same hospital. Scully is the author of "Fun in Bed."

Ominous Spot.

Uniontown, Pa.—Fate seems to have selected the spot at which Dr. S. H. Romeburg, 35, a dentist, was killed when his car skidded and overturned. The smashup occurred at Accident, Md., just across the state line.

Only 29.5 per cent of Ohio farms are still on unsurfaced roads, compared with a national average of 70.2 per cent.

Running on Wood The origin of the superstition concerning knocking on wood is doubtful. Some authorities attribute it to the ancient religious rite of touching a crucifix when taking an oath; others to the touching of heads of the rosary when praying. Among the ignorant peasants of Europe the custom probably began with the habit of knocking loudly to keep evil spirits away.

A Double Birthday Party.

A double birthday party was given for David Palmer and John McCulloch by Miss Granger Stewart Saturday afternoon. The following boys from her Sunday school class in the Roundout Presbyterian Church attended: Francis Burns, Ralph Miller, Herman Simmons, Bernard Wolfe, William Hart. A hike through the woods and games were enjoyed, also refreshments and a large birthday cake.

Hoffman-Fitzgerald

A very quiet wedding was solemnized Saturday morning at St. Joseph's Church when Dorothy E. Fitzgerald, daughter of Edward F. Fitzgerald, became the bride of Joseph H. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoffman. The young couple were attended by Miss Anita Hoffman, sister of the groom, and Donald Zucca. The bride was charming in a full suit of brown with accessories to match, and with a corsage of tea roses. The bridesmaid wore a tan suit with accessories to match, and wore a corsage of talisman roses. After the ceremony a breakfast was served for the wedding party at the home of the groom, after which they immediately left for New York. Upon their return a newly furnished home awaits them on East Chester street.

Petri-Thiel.

One of the prettiest of the fall weddings took place on Saturday, October 21, when Miss Mildred Thiel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thiel, of New street, and Charles Petri, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Petri, of Plattsburgh avenue, were married at Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock by the Rev. E. L. Witte, pastor of the church. Miss Gladys Buchanan of Pawtucket, R. I., a cousin of the groom, was maid of honor, and Walter Thiel, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The ushers were William Thiel and Preston DeWitt. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown made on princess lines with long tight sleeves and a train. Her veil was fashioned with a Juliet cap of seed pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Miss Buchanan wore a gown of tangerine chiffon velvet, with a turban fashioned with a tiny nose veil. She carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses. After the ceremony a supper was served at the Golden Rule Inn for the bridal party and members of the immediate families. The table was in the shape of a horseshoe and was decorated with white candles and white chrysanthemums. Out of town guests were Mrs. James Buchanan of Pawtucket, R. I., and Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Thiel, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, of Albany. After a motor trip through the west, Mr. and Mrs. Petri will be at home at 127 East Chester street.

Following the ceremony the bridal party went to the Casino of the Leggett estate, where the groom has been employed for the past 10 years. The Casino was beautifully decorated for the reception, with autumn leaves and flowers. The tables were very attractively set and the refreshments, including a beautiful wedding cake, were bounteous and delicious. Miss Ruth Haerer sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly". The music for the dancing after the supper was furnished by the Hudson Valley Orchestra which is composed of home-talent. Among those present were Miss J. McLeod, Lady Faith Montague of England, Mrs. E. Chadbourne, Mrs. Lisan, Miss P. After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Green will reside in Stone Ridge in the house which his brother and family are leaving to go to England.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Oct. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ennist and daughter of Highland called on friends here Sunday. Mr. Ennist is a former resident of Shokan.

Preaching services in the Reformed Church Sunday morning were well attended. The Rev. August Pfau, pastor of the church, took as his text Luke 14:26. The musical numbers included two vocal duets by Mrs. E. T. Angul, sister of the pastor, and Mrs. August Pfau. Miss Verna Giles presided at the organ. Mrs. Reynolds Bishop of the village center is spending the week with Mr. Bishop in Pelham.

Work on the new county road at the present time is centered mainly on fill work between the Cudney and Seeger places. Field stone from a nearby wall is being used to fill a considerable depression at this point with a view to making an easier grade. About a dozen men are employed on the project and it was expected that several trucks would be added today. It is reported in some quarters that the road will not be completed this fall due to a lack of funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Nadat of Poughkeepsie were callers at the B. Nadat homestead Sunday. Leonard Ploss, who for the past year has been employed at Henry Carleton's Tonche Mountain Rest, has enlisted in the conservation corps and will leave for service in Arizona some time this week. Several other young men from the reservoir section are said to be planning to join the forestry army.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Carey Bostock of Bryn Athyn, Pa., spent the week-end at their farm on the mountain road. The Bostock property many years ago was known as the Henry Coons property.

October 24, 1888, the Republicans of northern Olive held a mass meeting in Ladew Hall and a torchlight procession through the main street. Local Republicans in the Cleveland-Harrison campaign maintained a uniformed marching club and during the evening parades each member carried a kerosene torch.

The Rev. Dr. Wallace, who preached here on one occasion during the past summer, will again occupy the pulpit of the Shokan Reformed Church Sunday morning, November 19. Next Sunday, at the regular preaching services in the Mt. Tremper and local churches, Charles Terry, recreational director at Camp No. 2, will address the congregations. Mr. Terry, who is a graduate of the University of California and the National Recreation School, will tell something of his work among the boys at the Boleville camp.

A meeting of the Shokan Home Bureau will take place at the residence of Mrs. Clyde Winchell on Tuesday afternoon, October 24, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The second lesson of the course on rearranging the living room will be taken up at this meeting.

Fred Aditt, a district chairman of the Ulster-Greene Council of Boy Scouts, is numbered among the local sportsmen who are out after the gray squirrels. Mr. Aditt, accompanied by his son, John, generally are in the woods before seven o'clock on Saturday mornings. On their last trip to the Tice Tenack foothills, these ardent hunters saw two deer on the heights back of the Tueling farm.

Mrs. Santi Nadat, who joined her husband in New York city in August, is remaining in the city this fall. Sylvester Wells is assisting Edward Leyder in picking the apples on the Krekeler farm. Practically all of the apple crop here will have been harvested by the middle of the week.

Miss Virginia Cudney of Pine Hill, a former Ashokan girl, spent the week-end at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Fred Aditt.

Arthur Myers, formerly of Kingston, is another local crack shot who is keeping the squirrels guessing these fine days. "Art," who is one of Shokan's star baseball players, has quite a reputation as a fox hunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Burtis Wheat of the west end of the village were received as new members of the Shokan Reformed Church Sunday morning.

A real estate transfer of October 24, 1893, was that of a parcel of land in Olive from Frederick Trap-hagen to Rachel Lockwood. Mr. Trap-hagen, who was a grandfather of Kenneth Tyler of the north boulevard, resided near the old Shokan-Brown Station road.

Roger H. Loughran, candidate for justice of the peace in neighboring town of Hurley, has a number of friends in Shokan who are following his campaign for office with interest. Mr. Loughran in his younger days was a frequent visitor to this section.

Rob Bank and Escape.
Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 23 (P).—Five men armed with sub-machine guns overpowered 14 persons in the First National Bank today and fled with at least $25,000.

Outrageous Fortune

by Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS: Caroline Leigh and Jim went on a trip to London. The trip was a success. Caroline Leigh and Jim went on a trip to London. The trip was a success. Caroline Leigh and Jim went on a trip to London. The trip was a success.

Her eyes were as eager as a child's. The things that she wanted to tell him crowded together in her mind, pressing and pushing one another for first place. The last corner had it.

Chapter 31 JIM'S STORY

JIM went on. "He obviously hadn't seen me. Well, then I thought I'd find out what he was up to, so I went after him—and the light was half way up the stairs. I let him get to the top, and then I followed him. And the clerk remembered that he had seen me. He turned off again and came down here. When I got to the door, he was shining his torch all round the room."

"I thought I'd rather like to know what he was after. I—it was rather odd—I felt as if I did know. He put down the torch, pulled out a box of matches, and struck a match. He was just going to light the candle."

"I ought to have waited."

on the mantelpiece, when I walked into the room. I ought to have waited, but the heavy householders got the better of me—there was something so damned filling about the way he struck that match!

He gave a short laugh. "I said, 'What the something are you doing here?' and he dropped the match, grabbed his torch, charged right into the middle of me, and banged the door in my face before I got my breath back. It makes me sound like a stiff, but he was most uncommon nippy. It was like trying to get hold of a cat. I wish I'd seen his face."

"You didn't—when he struck the match?"

"No. He had his back to me. The whole thing didn't take half a minute. As I stepped into the room, he dropped the match and butted me. I hoped you'd seen him."

"What did he want?" said Caroline.

Jim looked past her with a strained expression in his eyes.

"I don't know—There was a pause. He made a movement as if shaking something off. 'He may have been a burglar—or just a common or garden tramp.'"

"Yes," said Caroline. "Why did he look like that? She came a little nearer. 'Jim—what's the matter?'"

HE was frowning in a puzzled way.

"I dreamt about this room—it's just come back to me."

"There isn't anything odd about that. Why shouldn't you dream about it? I often dream about places I know."

"There was something odd about it. A round room, with five windows like slits—that's the way I dreamt about it. Why? We've always called it the Blue Room. Why didn't I dream of it like that? I mean—his frown deepened—"why should I make up a perfectly new description of it and dream of that?"

"I don't know," said Caroline. "You can do anything in a dream—they're quite mad." She slipped her hand through his arm. "Jim, I've got simply heaps to tell you."

attended the meeting of the Uster County Farm Bureau committee when a joint session was held with the Clintonville, Modena and Plattville units at Van Sicklen's store in Clintonville Tuesday evening.

STROKES OF GENIUS

by SAMUEL JOHNSON & ALFRED PARKER

THE Cathedral of Notre Dame stands on an island in the middle of the River Seine which runs through Paris. This "Île de la Cité" is the oldest section of Paris and, literally, the cradle of France. As originally built between 1163 and 1240, the church was elevated above the ground by a flight of eleven steps. The rising level of the island has gradually erased the steps, so that now the cathedral is actually shorter than when it was erected! The sections of this Queen of French churches rise one above the other in five gigantic stories—a symphony in stone! The massive towers are famous for the gargoyles which decorate them; and the grotesque stone figures have inspired numberless poems and novels.

Since 1182, Notre Dame has been the scene of the most important ceremonies of the French church and state, and, in a great measure, its history is the history of France. Victor Hugo's literary masterpiece "Notre Dame de Paris" attracted popular attention to the venerable edifice and between 1845 and 1855, it was thoroughly cleaned and restored.

TOMORROW: A CRY FOR HELP THAT LED TO AN INVENTION!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

BY James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

LOSS OF THE GLANDS.

You may ask yourself at times as to what would be the effect upon your body if any of the little ductless glands were removed. You know of course that you could not live without your heart, your lungs or your kidneys, but you think that loss of the thyroid gland in the neck, for instance, might not make much difference.

Now each of these glands gives substance to the blood, which has certain effects upon the workings of the body: one gland hurries the body processes, another one slows them, another strengthens them.

For instance, if all the thyroid gland in the neck is removed the individual will die because he will not be able to resist the various diseases whose little organisms are always in the body but which are held in check by the thyroid gland.

If most of the thyroid gland is removed the individual gains weight, loses all desire to move, loses his memory, and the features become coarse and blunt.

If the pituitary gland in the base of the skull is destroyed there is loss of weight and strength, and death follows. If only a portion of the gland is destroyed the individual may live in a weak state for years.

If the little adrenal glands, situated one on top of each kidney, are destroyed, extreme weakness, low blood pressure, low temperature and death follow. If a portion of these glands is destroyed there is weakness and fatigue which come on with very slight effort.

If the pancreas gland is destroyed there is loss of consciousness, heart failure and death. If a part is destroyed there follows thirst and frequent urination—the symptoms of diabetes.

If the parathyroid glands (situated below the thyroid gland) are destroyed death follows due to changes in the muscles in the bronchial tubes.

If only part is destroyed there is restlessness, perhaps some spasm of contraction of the muscles, with lessening of the quantity of lime in the blood.

Now that doesn't mean that in every case where there is partial destruction of the gland that animal gland extracts can be injected to take the place of the part that is lost, but it is a fact that in a number of cases, injecting animal gland extract does the extra work needed.

This is why insulin keeps diabetics alive.

Edward Bell and Carl Moore, Frankfort, Ky., paddled a canoe 1,500 miles down the Kentucky, Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans.

George Nichols of New York City, who assisted Victor Dunnagan with the latter's farm work during Mr. Dunnagan's recent illness, has erected a dwelling house for himself and Mrs. Nichols along the hill road to Belleville, between the Dunnagan and Foster places.

Charles Green, enterprising farmer of the village center, commenced his fall plowing Friday. Soil conditions for plowing are considerably better than was the case before the rains of last Tuesday.

THE Great Wall of China is estimated to be from 1,200 to 1,500 miles long. It runs from a point on the Gulf of Lianghung westward to the Yellow river, then makes a bend to the south for nearly 100 miles, and then continues to the northwest for several hundred miles to the Gobi desert. Most of it is through a mountainous country, keeping on the ridges, and winding over many of the highest peaks. It is from 12 to 16 feet in thickness, and from 15 to 30 or 35 feet in height.

Talks to parents

Laughter

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

There are days in the life of all parents and especially of mothers, when the entire world seems to be in a conspiracy against them. Maybe the laundry is late, the telephone ringing incessantly, the dogs and cats underfoot; the biscuits get turned and the roast is underdone. To cap the climax, one of the children falls into the pond or down the stairs, or gets into a row with the neighbor's child, or is found playing in a mud-puddle, or the coal-hole.

The mother who allows herself to be annoyed by all these separate incidents will be nervously exhausted by the end of the day, and a succession of such periods of stress and strain may well leave her completely exhausted.

Moreover, the effect of the emotional tension and of the inner conflict set up by worry and exasperation has a very noticeable effect on those about her as well as upon herself, and may lead to serious climax, or at the very least to a violent scene.

There is no better cure for all the evils under the sun than laughter, and when, at the end of a succession of minor catastrophes, there comes a crisis which seems to the exasperated mother the last straw, the wise parent, instead of working herself into a fever by fretting, will relax under the burden and it possible relieve her feelings and her over-strung nerves with good, side-splitting mirth.

Such a reaction miraculously clears the atmosphere and throws things in the proper perspective. The children may look startled for a minute, but will soon join in the laughter, relieved at the unexpected clearing of the atmosphere.

The peace and good will which generally result from such an outburst, in retrospect, make the day's petty trials seem blessings in disguise.

Old Treasures Are Promised at Exhibit

Now that the attic, old chests and bureau drawers have been ransacked and all the beautiful oldtime quilts, coverlets, embroideries and other colonial hand arts brought out, the Loan Exhibit which is to be held in the afternoon and evening of October 21 and November 1 in the parlors of the First Dutch Church, bids fair to be an unique occasion. Among the patterns and designs that will be on display are the Shell, Morning Star, Rising Sun, Indian Hammer, Bear's Claw, Tulip applique, Double Irish Chain, Pine Tree applique, Bouquet, Bride's Bouquet, Centennial, Seal, Tooth, Little Red School House, Necktie Album, Basket Pineapple, The Box, Dresden Plate, apple lilies, Lafayette chintz and many other designs which were the prized possession of every housewife in Ulster county. All those who expect to exhibit must have a muslin square sewed to the quilt bearing the owner's name and a description of the quilt. All loans should be delivered at the church on Saturday, October 28, and they may be called for November 2 and 3. Mrs. Roger H. Bird as Cattle Guardian
The long-legged bird which appears on the 1923 postal issue of Uruguay is the teru teru, a native of the pampas. It is a useful creature in a country where grazing is a principal industry. Each bird adopts a cow or steer and appoints itself guardian of the animal. Flies, ticks and other insects, poison to the cattle, are the teru teru's meat. Said to be inordinately jealous, the teru teru will not share its wards with other birds.

Acadian Apple Tree
Only two or three authentic Acadian apple trees still remain in the Annapolis valley, Nova Scotia, where 300 years ago a peasant-colonist from Normandy, France, set out the first trees planted in North America. Long-fellow's sweet, sad poem, "Evangeline," immortalized the exile of Acadian families in 1755, forty-five years after France lost Acadia to the English.

PLAN PUPPET SHOW AT HURLEY CHURCH

The Adams Puppet Theatre of New York city is presenting its fascinating show of four plays at the Hurley Reformed Church, tomorrow evening, at 7:45 o'clock.

The four plays to be presented are: "The King's Jest," a clever French comedy by Francois. Guitrot, "Mr. Punches Downfall," a world famous play which includes ghost and devil scenes; "The Javanese Temple Dance," performed by a unique hand carved Javanese puppet imported from Buitenzorg, Java, and "The Egg-Laying Contest."

The original of puppetry goes back to the earliest stages of the oldest civilization: "It is believed that the puppet first came into being on the banks of the Ganges, India."

The Javanese have developed a puppet that is altogether unique and amazing. The Adams Puppet Show has a figure imported from Buitenzorg, Java, which appears in the "Javanese Temple Dance."

An entertaining evening is in store for you on Tuesday. Come to the Hurley Reformed Church, witness this unique show, the proceeds of which go to the Missionary Society of the church.

Local NRA Official Notices and Rulings

By WILLIAM F. HAUHART,
Director, Dallas School of Commerce,
Dallas, Texas.

It goes without saying that the NRA in carrying out its purposes is dependent on the cooperation of the general public. In various ways this cooperation has been freely given. Many of us feel, however, that the progress which has been made toward general recovery would be considerably enhanced if the latent or unused purchasing power which is among the people could be made effective in a demand for goods on the market.

Under ordinary conditions it is not necessary to urge people to spend money. They will, with few exceptions, tend to consume more of their income than is consistent with their own permanent good. It is a well-known fact, however, that as a result of a depression, we are likely to be beset with a fear which tends to cause an abnormal hesitancy in making the customary purchases. To be sure, the lowered income of the past few years finds some of us unable to put as much buying power on the market as we were able to do in more prosperous years. But there are also many who are merely holding back some of their purchasing power. They may be prompted to do this by a feeling of uncertainty in regard to the future and sometimes they claim that they are waiting to see whether prices might not go lower, thus giving them a more favorable position in the market.

Right now this attitude tends to retard our economic recovery. This is the more true, the greater the number of people who hold to this point of view. It is well known that good times economically are always characterized by the liberal use of purchasing power in the hands of possible consumers. On the other hand, during a depression and even after signs of recovery are clearly on the horizon, many consumers maintain a hesitant attitude toward new purchases. It is estimated that about 50 per cent of the decline in the price level of the last few years was due to the failure of those who had purchasing power to make it effective on the market.

It is not intended to suggest that we would be helped by purchasing in a spendthrift manner. But the products of the farm and industry must reach the hands of the consumer for ultimate use if we are to prosper economically. If farmers and manufacturers can dispose of their products to consumers, they can go on producing more, and this enhanced production increases the demand for laborers. It also keeps those steadily employed who were previously on the job. This in turn puts more purchasing power in the form of wages and salaries into the hands of the workers which will be added to the demand for goods and services, thus continually augmenting the demand for more labor.

This is a circular process, so to speak. Increased consumption stimulates the demand for goods. This in turn enhances the demand for labor which again furnishes added purchasing power to increase consumption. If added impetus can be given to this movement, by calling forth the buying power which is latent among the people, we will move gradually forward to a greater degree of prosperity and all of us will enjoy a higher standard of living.

Let us take now the two reasons mentioned before why some people are withholding their purchasing power, (a) on account of the possibility of lower prices, and (b) uncertainty as to their own future. It is quite certain that the price level is continually rising and has been going up for many months. There is no longer any doubt of our gradual emergence from the recent severe depression. It would not seem reasonable therefore to wait for a further fall in prices. Self interest demands that buying be done now for immediate consumption and forward buying of an investment nature, by stocking supplies of non-perishable materials and buying durable goods, such as furniture and machinery, as well as making investments in real estate, stocks, etc. The foundations for most of the large fortunes have been laid during past depressions by courageous purchase of commodities, securities, and real estate which grew in value as the price advanced.

When people refer to the uncertainty of their future income as an excuse for not making prudent purchases, they are forgetting the extent to which their own economic welfare is tied up with the economic welfare of their fellows. The prosperity of one is dependent upon the prosperity of everyone else. It is necessary at times, therefore, to cast our bread upon the waters in an economic sense also, so that it will return to us in later days. Our government, in its efforts to assist us, has allied itself with the natural forces of recovery, and in our own interest it is incumbent on us to fall in line with its endeavor.

Jangled nerves can make married life miserable

In so many cases it's not the big, important things that make married life unhappy. It's the little sharp words... the bickering... the nagging... the jangled nerves.

Old Timer Comments On Current Topics

Editor, The Freeman: It is quite a spell, for a fact, since I last addressed the public & Readers. I thought, well, now, I'll just sit down and write a little for the paper, and to write keep my hand in, but something else turned up, or maybe I've gotten too old for literary efforts. I guess. Health is fair to middling for a man of my years and things in general are going along about as well as can be expected, considering. Still, hey enough to eat & no debts that can't be squared up when they get after me too, darned hot for the same. Like yourself and the Readers I've seen more prosperous days, but can't tell you about things even after it would do any darned good to belittle. I'm ridiculous other hard times and we finally got the old clock loose from the stumps & made and the critics went ahead & thought nothing had happened, a-rollin' over good straight furrers & makin' up for lost time. Yessir.

Well, I see by The Freeman that Uncle Sammy has decided to lay off a little at them pow-wows over in Europe. A dog when he has been aint to scratch out a woodchuck & he dug for a spell, stops short when he discovers that a skunk has reared that hole for the season, and backs away from that mighty quick. Men and governments sartainly ought to be as much horse sense as a dog, and Sam appears to be a-gittin' a little whiff of unfavorable prospects, and thinks it's best to stow some of his gals for the time being. Tell me what, Mr. Ed., them fellows over there, like a slick city sharper, want our affeckshun & best wishes, but the old farm and the big old-fashioned banknotes what the wider, which is you and me, hez got hid away in the cracked teapot behind the kitchen stove. Now, often we don't steer clear of that furrin outfit this trip, why they will shorely bust us for all time and leave us bald from head to foot, ez a hog hung up at fall butcherin' time.

"Tother night I read ez how the new styles calls for plenty of good healthy flesh on the female figger, and thinkin' to please Marthy a bit, I sez to her, Well now after all these years we be ag'in in style, Marthy, on account you got what it takes to harmonize with the May West mode. Shucks & fiddlesticks, Eben, sez she, often you will read a little closer you will find out that it ain't only the upper which is good form to be full, & not the lower, where my apron goes around. Well, sir, that air a new one on yours truly and I don't get the sense on it. I believe most men like a hearty lookin' woman often the truth was known, but who in Sam Hill wants a freak, or one which appears healthy in one place and only half-dressed in 'tother section. These oughter be a law. You told in your paper about some fellows tearing down political posters in the county seat, and I thought, well, now, to see them things stuck up every few yards. What's the good on it anyway? The newspapers is the place to reproduce mainly features and to tell ez how much better a feller is air than the next one. Marthy me that this new practice of tearing & pastin' up cards and posters before elections is a relic of 'tother days, and a lot of them fellows what does it ain't quite grown up yet. Now often they would come around after the races is over and remove them signs. I would say, well, maybe they ain't seen had yet, but after all & I feel kind sorry for 'em gettin' beat like that was. But they never do that, they let 'em stick there till time and the elements make away with the pecky things.

Mr. Ed., did you see that moving picture The Hoxery 'tother night in the county seat? Marthy and me took in the show just fer to get back to our younger days for a spell. I've heard them tunes a thousand times, and the clothes them folks had on made me think of the red plush family album which I ain't looked inter fer I dunno how long. Marthy perceived to be a little mite shocked at the female dancers & sechlike, but I allowed that it was good rowdy humor and full o' smart cracks the hull way through. Now I be a feller what chuckles mostly, 'stid of laffin' out loud & hearty, which is a good thing, for some of the things ez tickled me pink was what the pious and hypocrites call vulgar and kind-er low-down in the humorous scale. How would it looked for an old feller, respectable appearin' on the outside account of white chin-whiskers and other earmarks of the patriarch, to puffaw like some o' them folks around us done? Everybody sez, Hear that old duffer; you'd never guess he had that much life left in him. It must be way past his bedtime, and so forth. Nossir, I never enjoyed a picture show more than that one, for a fact.

Now I musn't take up too much of your valuable space, Mr. Ed., fer I realize that with so darned much goin' on in the world you her quite a job to find room for all. Your paper runs so many advertisements too; gosh it seems ez though everything & everybody is advertised in your sheet. Well, that brings you in a little money in these hard times and I don't begrudge it to ye none, account Marthy and me get a heap of comfort and enjoyment outen The Freeman. It maybe will tickle you that 'tother day a feller who lives in New York city was here and he sez, Why I get the hot news in that paper about ez quick ez in them published in N. York. He was quite pleased that he had subscribed to The Freeman on that score though he done so mostly fer to hev the news from back home.

Well, I hev a dish of Alexander and Spitzenberg apples ez dropped a

Two Piece Dress Friendly To Young and Old

New York—Right in the midst of the football season seems a very good time to make woolen dresses the theme song of our program, as well as the mainstay of our wardrobe. It's the young crowd who like the plain sweater and skirt combinations, it's their mothers and big sisters who find solace in the two-piece, or one-piece wool frock or shirtwaist, or other tailored lines.

One of the very nicest things about this year's crop of so-called football fashions is that they are two-piece, for it gives the woman with a fondness for separate skirts and blouses the chance of a lifetime to wear them, sometimes in bold contrast and sometimes in matched effects, which are the happier choice for the heavier woman.

It is extremely pleasant to record also that the threatened shadow of the puff sleeve is passing for any type of dress is not rightly entitled to be puffed at the shoulder line. Sport clothes with puffed sleeves are just all off side. The shoulder line may be extended but for the most part it is fitted, rounded or done in the always good style raglan manner.

Velveteen has leaped to the fore in sports togs and for town wear too. Every other woman one meets has a huge velveteen bow to the left of her chin, a scarf of sorts, usually contributing a new color note to the costume and nearly always matching the hat.

It's a year for scarfs of the heavier sort, and a year for dresses that button or fasten snugly under the chin. There are several interesting scarf treatments, scarfs cut in one with the yoke or perhaps the entire blouse.

Unless one is going in for regulation shirts blouses go over not under skirt bands.

SKIRT AND SHIRT

Strictly tailored is the two-piece shirtwaist dress consisting of shirt and skirt. Brown, green and beige with brown piping to bring out the seaming interest and brown again in the belt is one color scheme.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

Moss green has been quite a sportswear favorite with the specialty shops, one after another quoting it among the leading colors.

Plaids are receiving much attention at the moment in multicolored and Scotch designs developed in wool or taffeta weaves and in prints, the latter to be seen mostly in silks and velvets.

A Stylish Model.

7654. Boleros are shown every where and are popular because they are becoming to every type of figure. In this model the cowl neck is important. The skirt, slightly flared is mounted on narrow oblique yoke sections that are fitted between V shaped inserts. The raised waistline is adopted in this frock. The sleeve may be finished with fitted sections below the puff or with the puff alone. The jaunty little bolero may be omitted. Printed crepe was chosen for this design in black on a white background. One could also use velvet or crepe satin.

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 if made as in the large view, will require 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material. With long sleeves and without bolero it will require 4 yards. Without the bolero and with short sleeves 3 2/3 yards will be required. The bolero alone will require 1/2 yard also 1/2 yard for lining. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 1/2 yards.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—In this sacred parade, J. Carroll Nash (pronounced Nash) is Irish, but the movies have made him a "foreign" character. But stranger than that is the history of the screen career.

Nash, it may be recalled, is the New York stage actor who donated blood for a transfusion for William Fox after the magazine had that so to speak, been receiving movie offers before that, but he didn't sign a contract until afterward—and it was with the Fox studio.

Well, he came to Hollywood. He didn't know why, at first, but it soon became apparent that his main duty was to draw a paycheck. Finally, it seemed, though he had been sipped only because of the blood gift, and nobody appeared to think of him as an actor, it took him about three years to "fire it down" and prove—in "The Hatcher Man"—that he was more than a transfusion volunteer.

Welcome, Mae!
The Western star sails higher in the cinema sky. Pictures at rival studios not only reveal the influence of Mae through mattering imitation, but recognize her as an institution.

In "My Weakness," for instance, "Come up and see me some time" is introduced in a manner so obviously akin to that of "She Done Him Wrong" that the reference strengthens the Lillian Harvey vehicle.

In Mae's case, it looks as though the other studios are accepting her as an addition to the whole industry.

Studio Jottings
They're having a laugh about the young actress who suddenly has gone very British and sprinkles "caw'n't" and "My dear" through her conversation. And what makes it funnier is that she made the grade in the first place by portraying a "Noo York shoppin'!"

Will Rogers won his point, finally, about playing that accordion. He didn't want to fake it for "Mr. Sketch," but when they argued he agreed to do it.

Where there's a Will, however, there seems always to be a way. "No, I ain't playing it now," he says. "I fixed it so any boy in the picture is the accordion man."

Fifteenth Century Organ
The cathedral organ in the town of Embrun, among the French Alps, dates from the late Fifteenth century.

At The Theatres

Kingston: "The Private Life of Henry VIII." No finer example of motion picture perfection has ever reached the screen than this incomparable play whose very brilliance of direction fades under the dominance of its even greater star, Charles Laughton. Mr. Laughton in the title role contributes a characterization without a flaw, and before a setting of historical grandeur, King Henry VIII moves about his glittering court, with matters of state of secondary importance, not to in any way obstruct the more important business of finding a satisfactory queen. Ponderous, childlike, brutal, extravagant beyond belief, yet lovable despite a multitude of failings, King Henry's life and loves move across the screen in entertaining fascination. This drama establishes Mr. Laughton as second to none in the motion picture industry, and it also proves that England is capable of turning out as good talkies as the United States, for this show was filmed and made in England, with a complete English cast. Superlative entertainment, enjoyable every moment, with a perfect dialogue, unusual treatment, and a star that makes the most of every situation. Don't miss this one. It's a talkie high light.

Broadway: "Wild Girl" and "Gambling Ship." Charles Farrell has a new girl and a new kind of story in this tale of the wide open spaces, and Joan Bennett also is differently cast as an untamed daughter of the west, who shies at convention and all those other things that makes civilization what it is today. Directed by Raoul Walsh, with Ralph Bellamy supporting the two featured players, this fast moving drama of law and those who break it, romance and action, proves to be exciting entertainment. "Gambling Ship" is a sauntering story with Gary Grant, Bentia Hume, Jack LaRue and Glenda Farrell. "Tarzan the Fearless," the serial picture starring Buster Crabbe, is also a featured part of the program.

Orpheum: "Strictly Personal"

Thurs. & Fri.—"Zoo in Budapest" & "Strange People" and "Return of Casey Jones." Dorothy Jordan, Marjorie Rambeau, and Eddie Quillan are to be seen in the first vehicle, a story of the marriage market as conducted by men who make it a business to bring lonely hearts together for a cash remuneration. "Return of Casey Jones" offers Dorothy Hall and Charles Starrett.

Tomorrow:

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum" and "Kiss of Araby." Al Jolson, pioneer talkie singer, is the leading man in these striking pictures, with Frank Morgan, Madge Evans and Harry Langdon. If one enjoys the singing and softening of the popular Mr. Jolson, this talkie will please. "Kiss of Araby" is a desert story with the principal actors being Marjorie Alva and Walter Byron.

Broadway: "Dangerously Yours" and "The Rebel." The first is a new old, but nevertheless a fairly interesting crook story. Warner Baxter plays the role of a light fingered and light hearted thief, who steals jewels and women as pleasures, his fancy, Herbert Mundin and Miriam Jordan are also in the cast. "The Rebel" Napoleon and his men invade the Tyrol country, wrecking a little village. One of the young men of the village is, on his way back from school, and he finds nothing but destruction. He turns rebel, there is fighting high in the Alps, and some of the most brilliant and inspiring photography of mountain scenery yet filmed. A foreign picture and well worth enjoying. The cast offers Victor Varconi, Vilma Banky and Luis Trenner.

Sellers and Buyers Look to Newspaper Advertising for Their "Clues"

YOU remember the "treasure hunts" that everybody was going in for, a while back. No party was complete without one.

The hostess hid something somewhere, and passed out slips of paper giving "clues" as to its whereabouts. Then the players jumped into automobiles, airplanes or boats, and burned up the roadways, airlines, and waterways, following out the clues which eventually led someone to the "treasure".

Treasure hunts are slightly out of fashion now for social parties. But business is right in the midst of a treasure hunt that is growing bigger and more interesting every day.

Merchants are hunting for concealed buying power — which shows itself on almost every corner, and then pops up an alley, unless you're quick enough to grab it.

Customers are looking for opportunities to buy judiciously. Some of them haven't played the game for several years. They need coaching.

Every merchant has some "treasures" in the form of worth-while values, but these treasures remain hidden from his customers if they are not advertised — and advertised in the newspapers where all who read will get the message.

People are tired of holding back. They see that business is getting better. More and more they're ready to join the hunt for things they need and want.

If you want these people in your store, there is just one simple rule to follow. Give them a clue. Give it to them, where they're used to looking for it—in the pages of this newspaper.

*Newspaper advertising gets to everybody every day — and gets there FIRST.

Home Relief Methods
Are Attacked

On this weekly report among other things it states the number of families who have received relief each week, the cost of the relief orders per day, the total number of families who have received relief for that week and the total cost of relief for that period. The names of the investigators and the number of families each have investigated during the week are also mentioned.

"I will now give you some figures taken from the report of the first twenty weeks of this year.

Cost of relief for week ending May 13 was 2,772.59	567
Cost of relief for week ending May 20 was 2,266.11	542

The average number of families receiving relief per week for this period of January 1, 1933, to May 20, 1933, was 651.

The average number of families investigated per week for this same period was 46.

Total cost of relief orders issued to families for this period was $50,684.59.

"Just imagine orders ranging in size from $1.50 to $10 were issued to an average of 654 families each week for 26 weeks while the average number of families investigated were only 46 per week. Furthermore, these orders, during those twenty weeks, cost the huge sum of $50,684.59. To those who are the least bit skeptical in regard to the figures I have given you and the statements I have made, I will say that I will be glad to show you these weekly reports which I have here with me to anyone at any time. You will notice that each weekly report bears the signature of the one in charge of the Home Relief Office and I have every reason to believe that they are correct in every respect. On these reports you will notice that there were held at the office each week a number of interviews with clients but these interviews cannot be considered as regular investigations such as are required by the state.

I have, on many occasions, complained about the great number of families that were receiving relief each week and the few investigations that were being made. On one occasion when I was lamenting in the Home Relief Office about this, I was shown several long yellow sheets on which were listed the names of families who had not had a re-investigation for a long time. We counted on these lists, 250 some names, and I was informed that many of these families had not been re-investigated for as long a period as three to four months. That this was true, is revealed by the weekly reports.

"We all know that the needs of a family may so change during a period of only two or three weeks to warrant an increase in their weekly allowance. On the other hand, a member of a family might obtain work for three or four days each week and thus give the family a steady income. In a case of that kind, their relief order might be greatly reduced and perhaps sometimes entirely discontinued without causing any hardship to them. The change in their condition but if the family failed to report it to the Home Relief Office of their own accord, which so often has happened, then, on account of the lack of investigations, the family might continue to receive the usual amount of relief for weeks before this unnecessary waste of the taxpayers' money is discovered.

"I have always contended that any good investigator could save the taxpayers some weeks at least twice the amount he received in salary but it seemed impossible to obtain additional investigators although there were many unemployed registered for work relief who were qualified to do the work and could have been made happy if given the work to do. There actually would have been no extra expense in a move of this kind as far as the taxpayers were concerned but more likely a great saving to them in a reduction in home relief expenses and a feeling that all the needy of our city were receiving it."

"Let me read you the ruling of the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration in regard to the number of investigators required in every community to produce efficient work and to keep home relief expense at a minimum. For each Public Welfare Department, during this emergency, the standard should be not more than 100 families per worker for the investigation and supervision of relief cases. The administration disapproves the practice of loading more than 150 cases on one investigator. However, we were forced to pile over 300 families on each of the two investigators and for a period of three weeks, we had only one man to take care of over 600 families. Would you call that efficiency? Do you call that giving the taxpayers a good business administration? Was that giving our needy people the consideration they were entitled to? Was it any wonder that a good portion of the time our office force was listening to complaints?

"You are, no doubt, wondering why the welfare board did not engage more investigators. You will think it strange when I tell you that although we were held responsible for the administering of relief to our needy we had practically nothing to say as to whom or how many were to be employed in our Home Relief office to do the work efficiently. The investigators and clerks in the office have for almost two years, been paid by the work relief committee. That was the understanding at the time our yearly budget was prepared and we were not permitted to set up any sum for them. We had no funds for the hiring of additional help and so were obliged to watch the inefficient work done and listen to the endless number of complaints regarding families entitled to relief. After I had made repeated requests for additional investigators, without any result, a motion was taken from the report of the first twenty weeks of this year.

board to request the work relief committee to supply us with a list of several names of those registered with them who would be qualified to serve as investigators. I inquired several times for the list and the following month at our board meeting I was informed that none had been received but that there was still hope that it might be forthcoming but as it was not received, the home relief continued in a sort of slipshod fashion with, part of the time, only one investigator trying to care for about 600 families. But it was not long after that a representative of the state department appeared on the scene with the result that more investigators were put to work and the home and the work relief offices were housed together in the armory with an out-of-town man having full charge of the investigations. Families were soon taken off of home relief by the dozens, not because they were all given work relief instead, but because many were found to have become self-supporting and were not entitled to receive home relief any longer.

"Before I go any further I want to say in fairness to the young lady who had charge of the Home Relief office, her office assistants and the two investigators, that I feel I cannot commend them too highly for the work they did accomplish during that trying period of the first five or six months of this year. I had for them the greatest respect for, although they were well aware of the fact that the relief was not administered in all cases as it should have been and although they were handicapped in more than one way in performing their work efficiently, they did the best they could under those trying conditions. Their nerves were often taxed to the limit but they always tried to be courteous and considerate to those applying for aid.

"As we all know, every needy case reported to the office should be investigated immediately. I am sorry to say that there were times when they could not be promptly investigated on account of the lack of help. For this same reason, no investigations were generally made on Saturdays as the investigators used that day for delivering food orders to certain people who were unable to call at the office for them. These persons were partly paralyzed or suffering from severe heart ailments or perhaps crippled in various other ways and unable to walk any great distance. As the investigators were busy with other work on Saturdays, cases reported for relief late Friday afternoon or Saturday morning were not usually investigated until Monday and some of these people had to depend on friends and neighbors for aid until their cases could be investigated. Cases reported to the office during the week were also sometimes delayed for a day or two before they could receive attention. Very often those who pinched and scraped and struggled along with the hope of not letting others know of their plight until they were in desperate need and it could not all have had their investigations made the same day that they reported of their circumstances was received at the office. If three or four of the unemployed had been given work as investigators there always could have been a man who could have been spared to make prompt investigations of all new cases reported for help.

"I have tried to give you a fairly good idea of how Home Relief was administered to those people living in our city who have found themselves in these trying times. In rather unfortunate circumstances. "I have tried to give you an idea as to how the administration in power skimped when it came to the spending of a little money to bring about efficiency and did not think it worthwhile to give a few unemployed men some very necessary work in looking after the needy in a way that would have put a stop to many of the complaints and, at the same time, have satisfied the overburdened taxpayers.

"I have explained to you how, for over a period of 20 weeks or practically the first five months of this year, over $50,000 was spent for Home Relief, also how, on an average, 654 families received their relief orders week after week with an average of only 46 families being investigated each week during that entire five-month period.

"Again I wish to call to your attention that as proof for these statements, I have in my possession the weekly reports signed by the person in charge of the Home Relief office and will be glad to let anyone at any time check up on these reports as to the accuracy of my remarks.

"Are you taxpayers satisfied with the way your hard earned tax money has been spent? Do you, who have received relief, feel that your family has, at all times, had proper attention? To you, who are neither burdened with city taxes nor have found it necessary to apply for relief, won't you give this matter some serious thought? Think of the injustice that has been done our taxpayers and those unfortunate people who have depended on the city for the necessities of life.

"If these conditions have not affected you, the least you can do is to consider the welfare of your friends and vote for the candidates whose names appear on the Republican city ticket and also for those appearing on the county ticket as well."

Bond Issue and Amendments Listed

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23 (AP).—Besides the $60,000,000 bond issue for unemployment relief, voters of New York state will vote on four constitutional amendments November 7.

Governor Lehman has asked approval of the bond issue as a "humanitarian duty" and as "essential to recovery." He estimates that 350,000 families are receiving relief and that "there is no prospect of this number being substantially diminished in the immediate future."

Amendment No. 1 which the voters will be asked to approve would authorize special terms of supreme court for the determination of compensation in New York city where property is acquired by the city for public use.

The second amendment, relating to preference in the civil service for disabled veterans, would authorize inclusion of all those who were residents of the state at the time of their entrance into military service and have since become citizens.

Construction of a state highway through the forest preserve in Hamilton county from Indian Lake to Speculator is proposed in Amendment No. 3. The fourth amendment would permit the state to turn over to New York city the West 53rd street barge canal terminal property for development of the west side waterfront. The proposal is to remove the constitutional barrier against an exchange of property between the state and the city.
